A woman starved to death after embarking on a spiritual journey which involved giving up food and water and attempting to exist on nothing but sunlight. Neither makes sense and they write about the same drivel. I only have hearsay: So I think they should be memorialized by having a very pointed conversation with people for whom even homeopathy is not a line too far. He describes in detail how he felt, what he missed and why he was motivated to try this plan: Milk from cows is a good source of solar energy<sup>3</sup> also an excellent source of fess hot light bulb filament radiates light energy<sup>4</sup>. Really now how long did you spend writing this???
