Offaly had the Archbishop of Dublin murdered, and besieged Dublin. Dereham, meanwhile, exposed Queen Catherine's relationship with Culpeper. The first grave in the new Chapel was that of his wife, Elizabeth of York.

However, I was sad that the author only went into depth about his first two wives.

In Henry had the Irish Parliament change the title "Lord of Ireland" to "King of Ireland" with the Crown of Ireland Act after being advised that many Irish people regarded the Pope as the true head of their country, with the Lord acting as a mere representative. For it was Henry's desperation for an heir that drove him to divorce Catherine in defiance of Rome and led to the English Reformation.

The alliance between Francis and Charles had soured, eventually degenerating. I would not be the first to send us your thoughts, or debate this issue live on our message boards.
